THE dead body of a Chinese male adult has been picked up on the beach at Yauma Ti under circumstances which lead to the suspicion that there was some foul play connected with his death. One end of a stout tape rope was wound round his neck in the form of a noose, while the other end was noosed on to his left leg. There was a large and deeply indented blow on the left side of his head, which apparently has been caused by concussion. These facts, together with the circumstance that a small tighting iron was found lying on the beach near the body, lead the police to believe the man has been foully dealt with. The body has been identified as that of a barber. No trace of how the man's death was accomplished has yet been found. An inquest was opened this afternoon and ad-

THE S. S. Saltee arrived this afternoon from Haiphong. We have received very little news by her from Tonquin. Hunghoa has been occupied by the French troops, but was found abandoned by the Black Flags; only some half dozen Annamites and Chinese were inside the citadel. The gates were blown up and the fortress dismantled and the neighbouring villages burned down by the French. It is believed that Lui Hang-fuk, the chief of the Black Flags, has retreated in the direction of the upper waters of the Black River, and may possibly work round to the southern border of Tonquin. An expedition under General Brière de L'Isle was about to start from Hanoi for Nimbinh in the South. No Chinese troops are now believed to be in the country except at Cao-bang and Lao-kai, where the Black Flags are supposed to be in force.

An account of the second and final battle between the British troops and the Arabs will also be found among the telegrams. It will be noticed that the Arab loss on this occasion is put down at no less than 6,000.

In another column we publish the decree

by which Prince Kung was degraded; an edict elevating Prince Chun to the highest official position next to the boy Emperor and the Empress-Regent; and a second edict ordering the Governor of Yunnan to Peking, and ordering punishment for the officers engaged in the defence of Bacninh and in organizing the defences generally in the South, from the Viceroy of Canton downwards. The reader will observe that some of these officials are to be punished for running away from Buchinh ' Here then is another distinct imperial avowal that the Chinese Government was engaged in the defence of Bacninh, and, not only so, but the Empress-Regent intends even now to punish high officers for not offering a better defence against the French in Tonquin. It will be seen that even a correspondent in Peking is unable to say whether these decrees indicate peace or war. Bombay, 1st April.—Mail news for the week ending March 14th.—The second defeat of Osman Digma is thus described in the home papers. At one period of the battle, the rush of the enemy was so strong that one side of the square was forced back upon the rear; the mon-combatants in the centre were crushed together, so that they could scarcely move. In a minute the fight was hand to hand; and so severe was the onslaught of the enemy that they broke General Davis's Brigade, who began to retreat, but rallied on getting back in line with General Buller's Brigade. Both brigades then advanced manfully and poured a terrific fire into the enemy, who were swept away. A larger number of Arabs came up from the ravine in which they been concealed, and awarrand down brothy upon our men, but were all killed. Notwithstanding this, the Galling guns fell into the possession of the Rebels. Confidence was never lost, however; the Highlanders responded to the calls of their officers: the guns were recaptured, and the Naval Brigade charging splendidly, the Arabs at last retreated, leaving 6,000 men Thead on the field.
